The "Silk Road" conjures up images of exotic travel and rare goods. From the first millennium, it refers to a series of routes that crisscrossed Eurasia. The historic land and sea routes established complex interconnections from Xian, China to the Mediterranean. This interactive teacher workshop is co-sponsored by the Pacific and Asian Affairs Council (PAAC) and the Stanford Program on International and Cross-Cultural Education (SPICE), with generous support from the Center for International Business Education and Research (CIBER)

The workshop will feature a historical/geographical overview of the Silk Road. In addition, SPICE curriculum specialists will demonstrate a selection of activities—covering geography, language, and music—from Along the Silk Road.
