Mayhem & Meaning: The Attacks in France

Tuesday, August 16th featuring Dr. Christopher C. Harmon

Christopher C. Harmon, author of the graduate-level textbook Terrorism Today, will address the latest terrorist attacks in France, placing them in context of contemporary events, history, and terrorist ideologies. Dr. Harmon has been publishing in the fields of terrorism and counterterrorism for thirty years. He has written four books and has had essays published in the Oxford Bibliographies and Orbis. He has taught at the Daniel K. Inouye Asia-Pacific Center for Security Studies, Marine Corps University, George C. Marshall European Center for Security Studies, Strategy and Policy Department of the Naval War College, and the Institute of World Politics in Washington, among other schools. Christopher C. Harmon received a B.A in History and French Language from Seattle University and a Ph.D. in International Relations and Government from Claremont Graduate School where his dissertation was about terrorism in Europe.

This forum is co-sponsored by the Alliance Française of Hawaii, the East-West Center, and PAAC.
